

Liz Godbey

My sculptures serve as mini monuments to the organic life around us. They resemble flowers, lichen, rocks, and other small or overlooked elements of the landscape. I craft forms and textures based on natural material as encountered in my practice of close and show observation.